

Beep!
Did you get permission from the original author to produce the derivative work?

If you don't get the permission, selling your books are copyright infringement!

I won't like to be her successor. I was dressed as a policewoman at her request when I helped with the manga event that she sold her manga.

He he he...

The more she interferes with other vendors, the better my manga sell.

It is difficult to continue a business alone. So, "succession of business" is an important issue.

Btw, I'm considering developing a successor to my manga club.

Qualifications We're having Part 3

That issue is my specialty. Please feel free to consult me.

I'm "2nd grade Certified Skilled Professional of FP".

Well, please give me two dolls modeled after Chinako as that fee.

Instead of she joined my Intellectual Property (IP) club, I joined her manga club.

Does her club have members other than her?

It's me.

It's an odd person...

Continue to next qualification.....

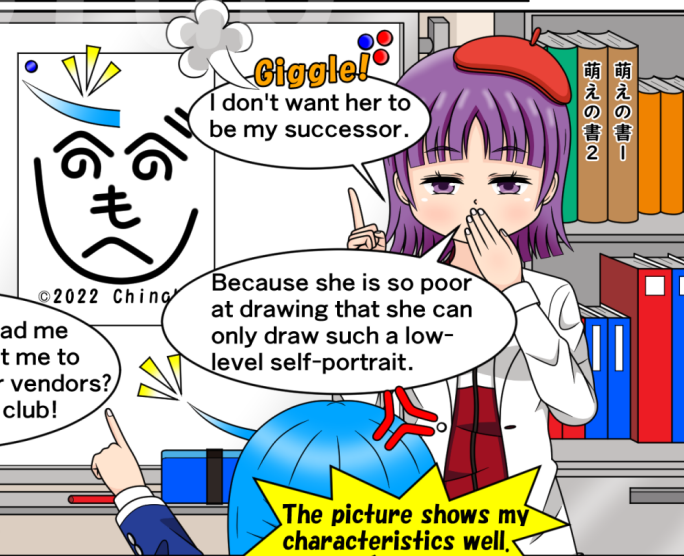

If you so, I'll leave your IP club too.

Is the reason you had me join your club to get me to interfere with other vendors? Then I'll leave your club!

So, you should first think about maintenance rather than succession of business.

Your club is on the verge of dissolution.

Giggle!
I don't want her to be my successor.

Because she is so poor at drawing that she can only draw such a low-level self-portrait.

The picture shows my characteristics well.
